

This form is for applicants who are required to undergo a chest x-ray as part of an application for an Australian visa. For information on health examinations see www.border.gov.au/trav/visa/health/meeting-the-health-requirement/arranging-a-health-examination

The Department of Immigration and Border Protection (the Department) is authorised to collect and use the personal information on this form under section 60 of the Migration Act 1958. When you complete this form and give it to the panel physician or clinic, the Commonwealth of Australia becomes the owner of the information on the form. The panel physician is required to send the form to the Department.

Your responsibilities

The costs of health examinations are paid by you directly to the panel physicians or clinics undertaking the examinations. There may be additional costs if further tests or couriers are required.

Outside Australia

If outside Australia you must attend the same radiology clinic during the course of your health examinations.

If you are an applicant for a visa under Australia's Offshore Refugee and Special Humanitarian Programme the Australian Government provides arrangements to cover the costs of your health examinations.

In Australia

If you are in Australia and you have applied for a protection visa, special arrangements may apply in regard to the costs of health examinations.

Visa subclass and visa name

To assist the Department to link your health examinations with your visa application you must write the visa subclass number and the name of the visa you are applying for on page 4 of this form.

For example:

- Subclass 405 – Investor Retirement
- Subclass 600 – Sponsored Family Visitor stream
- Subclass 890 – Business Owner (Residence).

This information is required for the visa decision-maker to process your visa application.

You can find the visa subclass number and the name of the visa on the Department's website www.border.gov.au/pages/welcome.aspx

Completing health examinations before you lodge your visa application

In some circumstances, the Department allows visa applicants to complete health examinations before they lodge their visa application. The Department's website provides information on where this is possible. For details see

www.border.gov.au/trav/visa/health/meeting-the-health-requirement/arranging-a-health-examination

You must undertake the required health examinations, as requested by the panel physician.

Please be aware that if you do not complete your health examinations before lodging your visa application you may need to undertake additional health examinations if:

- you later lodge a visa application for a different visa subclass;
- you decide to stay in Australia for a longer period;
- you do not complete all the required health examinations; or
- your health examinations expire prior to a decision being made on your visa application.

If you have not lodged a visa application and a significant health condition is identified which may impact on your ability to meet the health requirement you will not be provided with an opinion of the Medical Officer of the Commonwealth until after you lodge your visa application.

How to make an appointment for your chest x-ray

Outside Australia

If you only require a chest x-ray, please contact your closest panel radiology clinic and if necessary, obtain a referral from a panel physician. If you also require a medical examination, first contact a panel physician who will refer you to a panel radiologist. For details see www.border.gov.au/busi/pane/pane-1

In Australia

To make an online booking to undertake a chest x-ray in Australia you must contact the Migration Medical Services Provider. For information on how to contact the Migration Medical Services Provider see

www.border.gov.au/trav/visa/health/meeting-the-health-requirement/arranging-a-health-examination

Pregnant visa applicants and the chest x-ray requirement

A pregnant visa applicant who is required to complete a chest x-ray needs to discuss her options with her own treating doctors and/or the examining panel physician or radiologist.

A pregnant visa applicant may choose to either proceed with the chest x-ray or defer until after the child's birth.

If you decide to defer the chest x-ray until after the child's birth

A pregnant visa applicant should advise the Department if she decides to defer her chest x-ray until after the child's birth.

If you are prepared to undergo a chest x-ray while pregnant

If a pregnant visa applicant is prepared to undergo a chest x-ray, it is recommended that she consults with her doctor before arranging her appointment for a chest x-ray and that special precautions are taken (eg. using a double protective lead shield and waiting until at least the second trimester). A pregnant visa applicant must sign the declaration on page 4 before undergoing a chest x-ray.

Undergoing a chest x-ray does not guarantee the grant of a visa. Where a chest x-ray shows abnormalities, the visa applicant may be asked to undergo more specific tests and a course of treatment.

What to bring to the examination

Any previous chest x-ray films you have, particularly those from the last 5 years. The radiologist may ask you to submit these film(s) to the Department if they consider it necessary to assess your health.

Identification

A valid original passport is the form of identity documentation preferred by the Australian Government.

You must bring a valid original passport with you where possible.

There are limited circumstances in which the Department will accept alternative identity documentation. For details see www.border.gov.au/trav/visa/health/meeting-the-health-requirement/arranging-a-health-examination

The radiology clinic is required to confirm the identity of individuals who present at their clinic for Australian immigration health examinations.

If you do not bring acceptable identification documentation the processing of your visa application may be delayed or may not proceed if the clinic is not satisfied with the identification documentation.

Note: If you are a refugee, humanitarian or protection visa applicant special arrangements regarding identification may apply.

Medical information

Medical information such as a chest x-ray is used to assess an applicant's standard of health. After a decision has been made on the visa application it is usual for the Department to retain the medical information. The medical information is retained by the Department for use when assessing the applicant's health in the future and for panel physician audits to ensure the quality of work undertaken by the panel physician network.

Important information about privacy

Your personal information is protected by law, including the Privacy Act 1988. Important information about the collection, use and disclosure (to other agencies and third parties, including overseas entities) of your personal information, including sensitive information, is contained in form 1442i Privacy notice. Form 1442i is available from the Department's website www.border.gov.au/allforms/ or offices of the Department. You should ensure that you read and understand form 1442i before completing this form.
