This is not rocket science. Most breaches are through people, some organisations will quote this stat at being over 90%.

To make a massive dent in the traction of IT criminals, people need to understand the risks that they are subjected to, and know how to deal with them.

So that means good engaging awareness training, and then ensuring a culture of awareness in organisations.