My primary contention is that the people are paramount in any society and, of course, this applies to Australia.

If this is true, then our politicians will consider the privacy of its voters of great importance.

If they do not consider our privacy important, then they will pass laws that invade every privacy possible.

The extent of the proposed Bill will send a strong message to us, the people, of our politicians' real intention and values.

I await your actions with almost bated breath.

Regards

Timothy James de Beaux.
